Woodland Wonder Tales

No. 1 Billy Brighteyes Saves the Day.

S blod the forest trees it was or gray somered folk to get that ciranddaddy Gray bad something o say to the community and he repo fully requested that the young people be present. "Harry up, mammal" erieu filly Brighteyes, for we'll be late. After he had spoken Billy saw that his mother was "freezing." That does not mean that she was terribly, ex-ericatingly cold: to woodland createrists of the coldination of the coldi ing it means sitting perfectly still so as not to be seen. And this is exscily what Mrs. Brighteyes was dong. Billy and his siter fennis, being wise little squirrels, know that whatver mother squirrel slid must be right, so they squarted on the branch and kept as quiet no two baby squirrels can, until their mother movel.

What was it? anispered Billy
"A hunter," answered his mather.

"What is a hunter."

"What is a burster"
"A hunter is a bad man who smoots title squirreis."
Hilly cerned his need to see the man tilly craised his neck to see the man who had stooped beneath the tree where the Brighteyes ramily lived.

"That's not a bad man; thet's Polykin's papa," said he.

"Who is Polykin?" inquired Mrs. Brighteyes.

"A nice little girl," Blifs replied.

"Because see brings you peanuis," settled Jennie.

tioned.

"By the way his dog bays." This answer left Bidy just as puncied as wer, but he asked no in re-questions for fear of deliving things.

The treatops were already alive with graydouts on their way to the assembly when Mrs. Brighteyes ted forth her family. Blip Brighteyes came close much als mather's heels, but Jahnie was half a tree behind.

"We rear may also pleaned.

HER HAIR GET GRAY

She Kept Her Locks Dark and Glossy with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

When you darken your hair with sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and trouble-some. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation. aration, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just impen a sponge or soft brush with and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark-ened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no dis-grace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger - Advi
